Art and architecture

Volkshaus Basel considers contemporary art as part of its DNA. Through cooperations with renowned galleries, the integration of artists into event formats and the owners' art collection, art is made tangible in everyday life:

Large-format sculptures in the middle of a busy space and atmospheric paintings in unexpected places provide a subtle provocation and force our guests to actively engage with the individual positions. Be it at the reception or over a cosy glass of wine in the brasserie.

The merging of art with architecture – ideally with entire components such as windows, walls or unique pieces of furniture – can be experienced throughout the entire house. Depending on the eye and interest of the viewer, consciously or unconsciously.

We look forward to welcoming you at Volkshaus Basel and are at your disposal for any questions at any time.
